INVESTIGATE UNCANNY NOISE

Lauren Citizens Disturbed by Sounds
Coming From White Hall, Once a Spacious Mansion.

MURDER COMMITTED THERE

Posse of Men Discover Nothing but Noises Begin Again as Soon as They Depart.

People who live near old White hall, near Laurel, are disturbed because of uncanny sounds that proceed from it between the hours of 11 and 12 o'clock each night, says a dispatch from Connorsville. It is one of the oldest houses in the village and many years ago a mother and her baby were murdered there. Tales of uncanny sights and sounds about the place sprang up soon after the tragedy, and gave the house, once a stately structure, such a name that it has never been occupied since by anyone. Of late people living near the house have been disturbed by a sound like that of a child crying, and the noise seems to come from the upper story, where the tragedy was enacted.

A few nights ago, a party of citizens, thinking some practical joke was being played, took lanterns and entered the house, now ruined by time and neglect. Spiders had spun their webs in the corners and mice slipped here and there as the investigating party moved from room to room. They went up the dilapidated stairway and into the room in which the crime had been committed.

An owl flew out of the paneless window as they entered, but not a living thing remained so far as they could see. The strange, plaintive, baby voice had been floating out of that very room when they started in to the house. All was as still as death while they were there, but no sooner had they descended the stairs and left the house than the sound began again.

The house is one of the ancient landmarks of the White Water valley. It is of brick, well built, and was once a handsome home. It was painted white in years gone by, and somehow the name of White hall was given it. It stands on its own ample grounds, not far from the business district of the town, and commands a fine view of the valley to the south and east. The belief that something uncanny lurked about it has prevented its sale or occupancy through many years, and anyone who would now agree to pull down the old White hall and remove it from the place it occupies could probably do so and keep the material for his pains, all with the glad consent of the owner and the neighbors.

IS ON HIS WAY HOME

Connorsville Business Man, Who, Disappeared, Returns.

Will McIlwain, whose mysterious disappearance three weeks ago was the cause of much alarm among his friends and relatives, was expected to arrive home Friday evening. A telegram received yesterday afternoon from the secretary of Elks lodge No. 1, New York stated that Mr. McIlwain had recovered from his affliction to such an extent that he was able to make the trip home alone and that he would start from New York that evening.

ECLIPSE WAS BIG FAKE

Announcement Has Been Going the Rounds of Newspapers.

The announcement of an eclipse of the sun yesterday seems to have been a fake. It has been going the rounds of the newspapers all over the State for the past several days but a search of the old reliable almanacs shows that no eclipse was expected today. But two eclipses of the sun are seeded for this year and neither is visible in this country.

ARE UNHURT WHEN CAR TURNS TURTLE

Clarksburg Physician and Two Daughters in an Accident and Miraculously Escape Injury.

LOSES CONTROL OF MACHINE

Dr. Beale and two daughters living in Clarksburg on the Rush-Decatur county line, had a very narrow escape from being seriously injured or perhaps killed Thursday evening when their automobile turned turtle. The machine struck a bad place in the road, causing it to get beyond control of the driver and went into the ditch before he could get control of it. The occupants escaped without a scratch although they were slightly jarred by the fall. They were returning from Richmond to their home. The car was not damaged in the accident.

CHANGE DATE OF “BIG WEDNESDAY”

Merchants Decide to Hold the Next
Bargain Day June 29, Two Weeks From Last One.

FARMERS NOT BE BUSY THEN

At a meeting of the representatives of three committees last evening it was decided to change the date of the next “Big Wednesday” to Wednesday, June 29, or the next to the last day in this month. At the regular meeting of the Retail Merchants' Association Thursday night, it was decided to hold the big day on the first Wednesday in July. It is now thought that the change will be better since the farmers will probably at that time have less work than on the other date. The business men wish to set the date on a day which will come between wheat cutting and threshing and they think the last selected date will be the better.

Dorchester possesses the best preserved Roman amphitheater in England, in which over ten thousand people gathered in 1705 to witness the burning of a woman who had murdered her husband.

“THE YANKEE GIRL.”

Everyone has either sung or heard sung, “Rings on My Fingers and Bells on My Toes.” Blanch Ring sings that tune in the musical comedy, “The Yankee Girl.” She also sings “Her Name is Mary Donohue,” which is even more popular than the first named song. It is published on page three of today's issue of the Daily Republican as the weekly song number.

JOHN MEGEE IS NOT A CANDIDATE

Local Attorney Does Not Seek the Nomination For Judge of Rush-Shelby Circuit.

NEVER GIVEN IT ANY THOUGHT

Rumor That he May be a Harmony
Candidate to Settle Differences Without Foundation.

There has been a well defined rumor for several days to the effect that John D. Megee of the law firm of Kiplinger & Megee would be a harmony candidate on the Democratic ticket for judge of the circuit court of the Rush and Shelby circuit. Mr. Megee denied this afternoon that he is a candidate.

“I have never given the matter any thought,” said Mr. Megee this afternoon. “If there is any truth in the rumor it is purely the work of my friends and not of myself. I have never given the nomination any thought nor has it ever been talked by me to anyone. Of course, I do not want to say that I would not look kindly toward it. It would be foolish for any attorney to say that he would not accept the nomination for the judge of the Rush-Shelby circuit. I would accept it. But I think the matter is all rumor and I give it no credence.”

Mr. Megee was defeated for the nomination for appellate judge in the last Democratic State convention. He has long been one of the Democrats of the old guard in this district. The fight for the nomination is now being waged between Lon Blair and Albert Wray, both attorneys of Shelbyville. It is said that the contest is warm and that there may be something doing in a short time.

The Rush county Democrats believe that Shelby county should not “hog” the whole thing. They have two candidates for the judge's bench and one for the prosecuting attorney. John C. Cheney, present prosecutor, wishes the nomination again and has made his wishes known. On the other hand the local Democrats are going to take a hand in the affairs and already Dennis O'Neil has announced himself as a candidate for prosecuting attorney.

JOY RIDERS RUN AUTO ALL NIGHT

Guy Gordon Found Yesterday Morning That Someone Had Been Driving His Machine.

HAD BEEN ABOUT FORTY MILES

Joy riders are in evidence again. They stole Guy Gordon's automobile out of the barn Thursday night and drove it about forty miles. Mr. Gordon found the machine about half way up in the barn yesterday morning and in that way knew that someone had been using it. He estimated that the car had been run about forty miles from the amount of gasoline that had been used. He probably would never had known of the theft had the night prowlers been able to get the car back in the barn. When he found it in that position, he investigated and found that considerable gasoline had been used. Mr. Gordon has no idea who the offenders were.

WILL TURN CLOCK UP A WHOLE HOUR

Pinnell-Tompkins Co. Employees Will Begin Work at Six and Quit at Five.

TO BE STARTED NEXT MONDAY

Earlier Day Movement Was Agitated
All Over Country Last Summer
But Never Tried.

The Pinnell-Tompkins Lumber company is going to turn the clock up an hour. Not the clocks which are regulated from Washington, but their own clock down there in the office. In other words the men in the employ of the company will begin work at six o'clock in the morning and will quit at five in the evening. On Saturday they will be allowed to stop at four o'clock in the evening. The plan will be started next Monday morning.

R. L. Tompkins, who is the local manager of the company, believes the plan a good one. He said this afternoon that he would be willing to turn the clock up two hours if anyone wanted to try it. He said that the early morning was the best time to work and when that plan was working the men had more of the evening to themselves. He is a firm believer in the old axiom, “Early to bed, early to rise, makes a man healthy, wealthy and wise.”

Mr. Tompkins said that he was going to start the movement and if anyone was willing to fall in line, he would not object. He thinks it is the best plan for his business and is going to give it a thorough trial. It is very likely if the plan proves to be successful that other manufacturing plants and business houses will try it.

The movement was agitated all over the country last summer, but was never given a fair trial. All of the big cities considered the change, but it was never tried any place. It was given some consideration here at the time. It may now be found practical or impractical.

AGED RESIDENT CALLED BY DEATH

Mrs. Martha J. Williams, 62 Years Old of Arlington, Expires After Long Illness.

THREE CHILDREN SURVIVE HER

When Mrs. Martha J. Williams passed away last midnight, one of the best known residents of Arlington died. She succumbed after a long illness with dropsy. Mrs. Williams had been suffering with the disease for eight months and her death had been expected for several days. The attending physician had no hope whatever for her recovery.

Mrs. Williams had spent the greater part of her life in Arlington, where she was very well known. She was sixty-two years old at the time of her death. She was the widow of James H. Williams who died several years ago. He was a veteran of the civil war.

Mrs. Williams is survived by three children, Mrs. John Innis of this city, Miss Flora Williams and Mrs. Thomas Alsmann of Arlington. The funeral services will be held at the residence tomorrow afternoon at two o'clock, conducted by the Rev. S. A. Morrow. Burial in Arlington East Hill cemetery.

RETURNS FROM CONVENTION

Local Eagles Report an Enjoyable Time at Annual Session.

Several members of the local earle of Eagles returned last night from Richmond where they attended the last day's session of the fifth annual convention of the lodge. They say that the meeting was the most successful one in the history of the order. The big feature of the last day was the parade, in which over eight hundred men marched.

BUNCH OF SPRING SHOATS ARE STOLEN

John Hedrick of Near Andersonville Finds Ten Pigs Missing Out of His Field.

WERE LIFTED OUT OF FIELD

John Hedrick had a fine bunch of spring shoats, the average being fifty pounds, says the Andersonville Herald. On going to feed them one morning last week he found ten were missing. He has hunted all over the country for the pigs but has been unable to find any trace of them so far.

He, however, discovered in the field where the persons who stole them had made an enclosure with wire netting or gates and had corralled the pigs. They were then lifted over the fence into a wagon.

Mr. Hedrick has his eyes on certain persons and may yet find his hogs. He is almost certain that he knows the guilty parties.

RECEIVE WORD OF BROTHER'S DEATH

Mrs. H. B. Ward Gets Telegram Announcing Demise of John Hardy.

HAD BEEN LIVING IN ILLINOIS

Mrs. H. B. Ward received a telegram today telling of the death of her brother, John Hardy of Sumner, Illinois. Mr. Hardy spent the early part of his life in Rush county, where he was quite well known. About 1856 he moved to Lawrence county, Illinois, where he was married to Miss Martha Leech. They spent the greater part of their lives on a farm, but within the last few years they moved to Sumner, where Mr. Hardy was a well respected citizen. Mrs. Ward of near Rushville is the only surviving sister.

PARTNERSHIP DISSOLVED

Partly cloudy tonight and Sunday.

IMPRESSED BY BIG WEDNESDAY

Shelbyville Business Men Return Home and Decide to Make a Similar Attempt.

HAVE BAND CONCERT TODAY

Merchants Have Awakened to the Fact That it Pays to Advertise.

The first of a series of open air band concerts to be given this summer under the auspices of the merchants of the city will occur Saturday afternoon and evening when the Chenhall Presbyterian band will dispense delightful melodies on the public square, says the Shelbyville Democrat. The concert will be given by the merchants in the northwest corner of the public square, but it is expected that it will pave the way for other concerts of a similar nature in the immediate future. The matter of giving band concerts will be taken up for consideration at the next meeting of the Merchants' Association and the consensus of opinion seems to be that arrangements will be perfected whereby band concerts will be given at least on one evening of each week.

Thus far the Merchants' Association has demonstrated beyond a shadow of a doubt the vast amount of good that can be done when there is a concerted movement on the part of the business men of the city. One excellent thing has already been accomplished. The association has served to draw business men into closer touch with one another and as a result petty jealousies that usually exist in cities of this size have been obliterated. The association is practically a new thing and if the interest still continues to manifest itself in the future much good can be accomplished by the organization.

Members of the party of business men who visited Rushville Wednesday are so impressed with the “Big Wednesday” feature that they are heartily in favor of adopting a similar plan here. Some objections to the plan as it is carried out in Rushville might be entered, but these particular features could be eliminated when the plan is put into effect here. Business men of Rushville have completed plans for holding a “Big Wednesday” every two weeks throughout the summer months. Further evidence that the plan is a most excellent one is attested to by the statements made by one merchant. “I have had persons in my store today,” said he to one of the local party, “that I have never seen before. They not only purchased my ‘specials,’ but purchased other goods as well.” One man in the clothing business stated that he sold twenty-seven hats Wednesday. This only goes to show the affair is a good drawing card and something of a similar nature should be tried here.

The figures for 1908 show that there were 464 universities, colleges and technical schools in the United States.

“THE STOWAWAY.”

The opening chapters of “The Stowaway” appear in today's issue of the Daily Republican and will be found on page six. The novel is written by Louis Tracy, who is the author of “Pillar of Light” and “The Captain of the Kansas.” It is a typical Tracy novel which grips the interest in the first chapter and holds it until the last.

THOUSANDS WELCOME ROOSEVELT

Nation Pays a Great Tribute to Former President Upon His Arrival in New York.

New York, June 18.—A reception that transcended all of his visits to the capitals of Europe combined in point of numbers, enthusiasm and spontaneity greeted Colonel Theodore Roosevelt here this morning on his return to his native land.

The most frankly pleased person was the returned traveler himself, and not only by words of thanks, but with the famous Roosevelt smile and vigorously enthusiastic acknowledgments of greetings, did he show his appreciation of the greatest reception tendered any American.

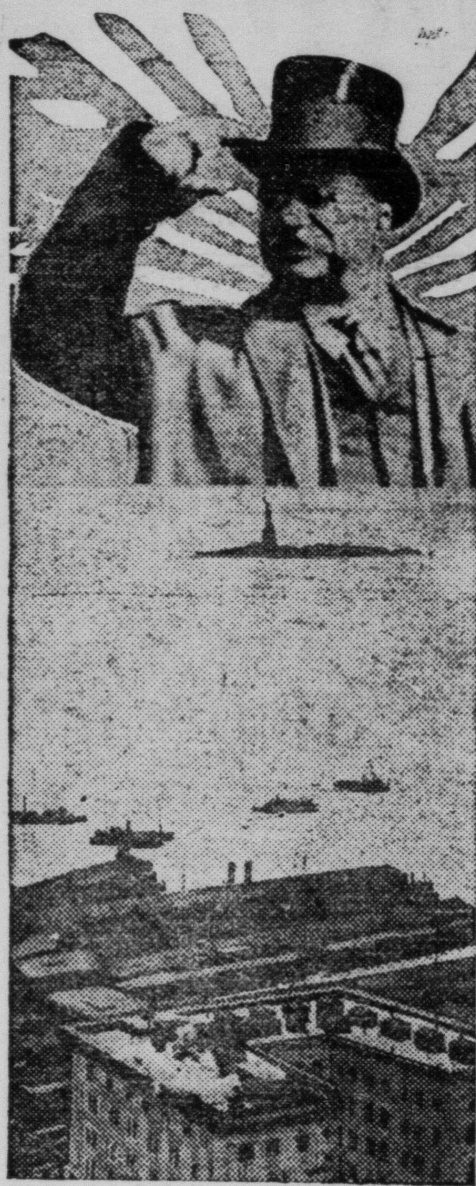

"De-lighted!" roared the crowd on lower Broadway as the procession started northward from the Battery, and the ex-president showed his famous teeth as he bowed. "Bully!" shrieked the impenetrable mass at City Hall park, and the Rough Rider stood in his carriage and waved his hat. The people remembered the colonel's succinct phrases, and so did Mr. Roosevelt, for he never ceased to acknowledge them.

New York has welcomed many notables, but never a one attracted the attention or received the welcome accorded the citizen of Oyster Bay. Before many of the so-called "malefactors of great wealth" had arisen for the half day's labors the naval flotilla was at Quarantine awaiting the transferring of the Roosevelt party from the Kaiserin Augusta Victoria to the revenue cutter Androscoogin.

Half Holiday Opportunity.

By the time the great marts of trade were in full swing he was being officially welcomed home, and the commencement of the half holiday served chiefly to permit the hundreds of thousands of workers to delay their homeward trips to witness the triumph of Roosevelt as the procession passed up Broadway, under the Washington arch and up Fifth avenue through ranks of cheering political and business and social organizations.

Despite the early hour thousands of sightseers—men, women and children—were at the Battery by 5 o'clock this were few of the committeemen whose names he could not recall without prompting, for they embraced old friends and allies and bitter political foes, but all this was laid aside for a day in New York's expression of the national welcome to the statesman and hunter.

Naval Parade Impressive.

There was but one warship and five torpedo boats in the fleet, but it lacked nothing of dignity because of the necessary omission. There were twelve divisions, each commanded by a vice-commodore under general supervision of Fred B. Dalzell. In the first and second division were steamboats carrying members of various political organizations. The Republican club of New York, Hamilton club of Chicago, Duquesne club of Pittsburgh and Union League club of Philadelphia were among them, and each had a steamer filled to the guards and canopied in bunting.

The third division was composed entirely of steam yachts, and this was the social section, for the women lent their aid to the celebration with the gaiety of summer costume. The remaining division contained tugs and miscellaneous craft. The entire course in the upper bay and North river was patrolled by revenue cutters and steam craft impressed into service by the committee in charge.

The water display was an impressive one. The big armored cruiser North Carolina, was President Taft's insistent contribution as an administrative feature, and it formed a black spot in the array of highly decorated steamers and tugs.

Straight up the North river the procession moved, factories and vessels along the shores adding their whistles to the din that carried for miles. The boats were in two lines 200 feet apart and kept to the New Jersey side of the river to Fifty-ninth street, where a stakeboat was placed. On the return trip the boats followed the New York side and enabled Colonel Roosevelt to review the procession, the Androscoogin passing through the center of the flotilla. By the time Colonel Roosevelt arrived at the Battery the boats were still moving up the river. The nearest approach to the demonstration was the trip up the same river in 1899 of Admiral Dewey and the Olympia on his return to the United States after his triumph at Manila.

People Pack Water Front.

The water front on both sides of the Hudson was black with people, special grand stands being erected on many of the piers, and exorbitant prices were charged for seats.

It was about 11 o'clock when Colonel Roosevelt and the reception committee disembarked at the Battery, where Mayor Gaynor awaited them. Every available foot of ground not guarded with physical force by the police was occupied, and it was with difficulty that Broadway was kept clear for the land parade.

The disembarkation was the signal for the start of a hoarse roar from the crowd, which was but temporarily checked by the presidential salute of twenty-one guns from the North Carolina. The arrangements at the Battery were so perfect that Colonel Roosevelt was landed without inconvenience and made his way on a raised walk from the pier to the platform facing Battery park, in comparative comfort. The windows and roofs of surrounding skyscrapers reflected the mass of people on the Hudson's shores, and no point of vantage was too dangerous to lack an occupant.

According to the committee's program, the ceremonies of welcome were brief. The advance of Mr. Roosevelt to the front of the platform was the signal for a marvelous demonstration, during which time he renewed his acquaintance with Mayor Gaynor and others and then waited for the tumult to subside. The noise would die away, and then the colonel, catching sight of some child in the crowd who was waving a handkerchief, would smile broadly morning. The reason was twofold. They wanted to see the departure of the flotilla of steamers as it started down the bay for Quarantine, and they had hopes they would beat the police to positions of vantage around the stand of welcome. The latter was a vain quest, for hundreds of bluecoats surrounded the platforms and adjacent space reserved for the reception committee.

Remedies are Needed

It was a hurried embarkation of the welcomers not only at the Battery, but at more than a hundred piers on the Hudson and East rivers, for the rendezvous was set for the Narrows, connecting the upper and lower bays, for 8:30 a. m. The sun was fast dispelling the morning mist and the light glinted on gaily decorated craft of every description. Flags, bunting, Teddy bears, G. O. P. elephants and welcome signs were seen everywhere.

Greeted in the Bay.

The time of transferral of the Roosevelt party had been tentatively fixed for 9 o'clock, and it was about half an hour before that the huge Kaiserin Augusta Victoria was seen threading her way up the Ambrose channel, the decks filled with passengers, who waved greetings to the hundreds of smaller craft that surrounded her.

As the steamer passed the din of welcome began. The guns of Fort Wadsworth on the Staten Island side of the Narrows boomed their greeting, and the artillery of Fort Hamilton on Long Island echoed noisily. Every whistle of the flotilla shrieked in rivalry as the steamer dropped anchor off Quarantine.

The din was at its height when the Roosevelt party was espied on the upper forward deck, the colonel boyishly waving his hat to Collector William Loeb and other friends on the revenue cutter Androscoogin.

By his side were Mrs. Roosevelt, Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, Miss Ethel and Kermit Roosevelt and Secretary of the Navy Meyer, who met the steamer at Sandy Hook last night.

The Androscoogin headed the procession, and Colonel Roosevelt held an improvised levee forward. There

WATCHING THE PARADE.

Wilson, Captain Archibald W. Butt, the president's military aid, Governor Fort of New Jersey, ex-Governor B. B. Odell, Jr., of New York and many others.

The band of Squadron A, the crack cavalry troop of Manhattan, led the Spanish war veterans, of whom several thousand were in line in the khaki of the Cuban and Philippine campaigns. Bringing up the rear were Captain Jack Abernathy, federal marshal of Oklahoma, and his sons, Louis and Temple, aged ten and six respectively. The youngsters, who had ridden from Oklahoma alone to greet their idol, the colonel, received a hearty welcome.

25,000 Club Members Cheer.

That was all the procession, but the east side of Fifth avenue from Washington square to Fifty-ninth street was lined with military and political organizations to the number of 25,000, while the curb on the opposite side was devoted to the public.

From the narrows to Central Park it was the same, a continuous ovation, but Colonel Roosevelt seemed never too tired to bow and smile and that satisfied the people.

At the conclusion of the parade Mr. Roosevelt and several others were driven to the residence of Mrs. Henry A. Alexander, mother of Theodore junior's fiancée, Miss Eleanor B. Alexander, where they were entertained at luncheon. Colonel Roosevelt did not reach his Oyster Bay home until late afternoon. Tomorrow will be spent as quietly there as conditions will permit, and on Monday his son, Theodore junior, will be married.

BETTER THAN SPANKING

Spanking does not cure children of bed-wetting. There is a constitutional cause for this trouble. Mrs. M. Summers, Box W, Notre Dame, Ind., will send free to any mother her successful home treatment, with full instructions. Send no money, but write her today if your children trouble you in this way. Don't blame the child, the chances are it can't help it. This treatment also cures adults and aged people troubled with urine difficulties by day or night.

AN EASY AND HARMLESS WAY TO DARKEN THE HAIR.

Who does not know of the value of sage and sulphur for keeping the hair dark, soft, glossy and in good condition? As a matter of fact, sulphur is a natural element of hair, and a deficiency of it in the hair is held by many scalp specialists to be connected with loss of color and vitality of the hair. Unquestionably, there is no better remedy for hair and scalp troubles, especially premature grayness, than sage and sulphur, if properly prepared. The Wyeth Chemical Company, 74 Cortlandt St., New York City, put up an ideal preparation of this kind, called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur. It is sold by all leading druggists for 50c. and $1.00 a bottle, or is sent direct by the manufacturers upon receipt of price.

If so, use Red Cross Ball Blue. It will make them white as snow. Large 2oz. package 5 cents.

Fight the Flies

The presence of flies is a direct evidence of careless housekeeping and the existence of filth in some form about the premises.

Remember that when and where absolute cleanliness prevails there will be no flies.

Look daily after the garbage can. See that they are carefully spunked with a disinfectant.

Look carefully after the cuspidors; they require constant attention. They should always contain a disinfectant.

Flies feast on tuberculosis sputum, and hover around cuspidors. The specks of flies contain live tubercle bacilli after they have eaten tuberculous sputum, showing that the bacilli will pass through the diactive, infective state.

Flies carry on their mouths and on their legs disease germs, on which they have recently fed, and then crawl over food, infecting it.

Keep flies from the SICK, especially those ill with communicable or contagious diseases.

Don't forget that flies will carry the bacilli of typhoid fever to the food in the kitchen and dining room. This is no conjecture. The Spanish-American war proved this fact.

The great secret of how to get rid of flies is CLEANLINESS.

Screen all food.

Keep receptacles for garbage carefully covered, and the cans cleaned or sprinkled with oil, lime, or some good disinfectant.

Cover food after a meal.

Screen all windows and doors, especially the kitchen and dining room.

Don't forget if you see flies that their breeding place is nearby. It may be behind the door, under the table, or in the cuspidor.

If there is no dirt and filth there will be no flies.

If there is a nuisance in the neighborhood write at once to the health department.

In the United States the percentage of railroads which are not engaged in carriage of the mails is very small.

Big Road Tax Swindle

The authorities of Newton county believe they have discovered a scheme to swindle the taxpayers, and from the evidence they have at hand they think the swindle is being worked all over Indiana.

If it is, the different townships of the State are losers by thousands of dollars every year in the collection of road tax. The steal is made possible under the law that permits railroad corporations to work out their road tax instead of paying it in cash or working it out in person, as the ordinary property owner has to do.

All that is necessary is a crooked contractor and a dishonest supervisor, and you have a combination that gives the people the worst of it, not only in dollars and cents, but in poorly constructed roads.

Such a combination has been uncovered in McClellan township, Newton county, and the supervisor has told his story to Prosecuting Attorney Longwell, in hopes that the prosecutor will allow him to take an immunity bath. Mr. Longwell, however, has made it plain to the supervisor and his lawyer that as far as the prosecutor's office is concerned there is no bath annex, but if Judge Hanley sees fit to suspend sentence, the prosecutor will not protest.

Under the law railroads are taxed a certain amount for keeping up the roads. The company may pay this in cash or it may work the tax out on the country road. Of course, the railroad corporation can not take a pick and shovel or a team and work out its road tax, so it lets out the contract to do the work. The contractor represents the railroad and is paid for his services by the railroad.

After the contractor has performed his job a receipt is given him by the township trustee, who gets it from the supervisor of the district in which the work is done, and this receipt the contractor turns over to the railroad company and gets his money, while the railroad company hands the receipt in at the treasurer's office and receives credit for so much tax paid.

In the Newton county case the prosecutor discovered a receipt for over $300 for road work for a railroad. He investigated and finally, under pressure, the supervisor confessed that he has given the receipt to "a friend," who had pressing need for the money. The prosecutor is one of the kind who prosecutes so there is trouble ahead for the supervisor.

been used and recommended in every city and hamlet in America. They are positively standard in every community—and everywhere. Then why pay the cash, and at your risk, for other unwarranted and uncertain medicines? Thousands upon thousands have in the past successfully used Dr. Shoop's Restorative. When the Stomach, Liver, Nerves, or the Heart nerves fail, know how Dr. Shoop's Restorative will bring them back to health again. But best of all, they positively take no money risk whatever. They know that when health fails to return Dr. Shoop will himself gladly pay the druggist for that test. And for that test a full 30 day treatment is freely granted.

But write me first for an order. This will save delay and disappointment. All druggists sell Dr. Shoop's Restorative and Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy, but authorized to day test. ## WHAT PUBLIC LIFE MEANS "To me public life has but one meaning; to me this Republic has but one meaning. It is this: Here are millions of human beings. Not one of these millions asked to be born, yet born we were without our consent. Not one of us asks to die, yet die we must without our consent. And in the brief space between birth and death all of us except the favored few have a hard enough time. What can be done to make the load of all these millions lighter? That is what civilization means to me. What can be done to help the American people give an example to all the world of the progress of civilization and human contentment? That is all public life means to me."—Albert J. Beveridge.

Plans for the organization of a million-dollar syndicate to buy up the rundown and unproductive farms throughout the State of New York and to finance farmers in the period in which the farms are being brought to a state of fertility under modern methods of agriculture are now under way with every prospect of success.

United States Judge J. V. Quarles at Milwaukee, (the town made famous by Schlitz) in giving grounds for his ruling that a saloon open on Sunday did not violate a man's application for citizenship said: "Any Legislature that establishes police regulations in defiance of public sentiment must suffer the humiliation of seeing its mandate disregarded."

There is a good reason to believe that the next Indiana congressional delegation will be overwhelmingly Republican. From district after district comes the good word that tells of strong nominees, harmonious conventions, sensible and fair platform pledges, and love feasts in which party workers take enthusiastic and united parts. Hopefulness and determination are the keynotes everywhere. Enthusiasm and vigorous organization work mark the preliminaries.

A Berlin, Germany, report of recent date says that the municipal authorities are preparing for the introduction in the City Council next winter of a measure embodying a plan of insurance against unemployment, designed for the benefit of the 1,500,000 inhabitants of the suburbs of Berlin. The plan constitutes one of the most comprehensive moves toward social legislation ever proposed. The intention of the authors is to combat the widespread distress that always develops among the working classes of the capital during the winter months.

Curt Gosnell, Former Local Trainer, Has Stable of Fast Ones

Curt Gosnell was a trainer here for many years, and several years ago moved to Cambridge City where he is engaged in the same business. The Western horseman says of his stable:

John S. Lackey and Curt Gosnell are the only trainers working any horses at Cambridge City, Ind. They are at the Lackey track and it is in splendid condition, better, in fact, than many tracks where larger stables are working.

Curt Gosnell's horses are in the pink of condition and are as fit to race as many stables that have wintered in the South. His horses are carrying plenty of meat and are as hard as steel, the result of work on them when the snow was flying and the roads bad. Willie Benton, 2:06½, the fastest record horse in his stable, never looked better in his life. He is round and smooth and looks fit to go to his record tomorrow without the straps. Gosnell has worked him five miles better than 2:20, two of which were in 2:15, with the last quarters in 31 seconds. Silva J., 2:14¼, the good pacing daughter of Reward J., 2:10¼, is another of the Gosnell record pacers that is showing well. She has also been a mile in 2:15, and is able to step home the last quarter in 31½ seconds, well within herself. Lou Westwood, 2:14¼, his good pacer of last year, that in twelve starts was only once behind the money, has been making progress, the slowest of his record pacers, a mile in 2:29, being the fastest asked of her this year. Cadmus Jr., 2:15¼, has been worked out with Silver J., and worked in the same notch with plenty to spare.

The only record trotter in his stable is the mare Baroness Direct,

2:19¼. She is going good-gaited, has been a mile in 2:23½ and looks to be a good prospect for the classes to which she is eligible. She was a mile last year at Lexington in 2:12 during the fall meeting. Among his green trotters is an exceedingly good horse—Walter W., by Albert Jay, 2:16, a son of Jay Hawker, dam by Bermuda, 2:20½, second dam by W. C. P., a son of William L., sire of Axtell, 2:12. Walter W. is a very handsome horse, that with sixty days' work last year trailed a mile over a half-mile track in 2:18. He has been a mile this year in 2:21, a half in 1:09 and a quarter in 33½ seconds. He has another green trotter, a six-year-old, by Anderson Wilkes, dam by Tramdallah, by Hambletonian Tranby, that has been a mile in 2:35 and a quarter in 35 seconds. Billiken, a green trotter by Kinster, has been a mile in 2:32, last quarter in 35½ seconds.

His green pacers are the six-year-old mare, Celia W., by a son of Brown Hal, that has shown him a mile in 2:20; a five-year-old green pacer by Anderson Wilkes, dam by Czar, that has been a mile in 2:27, the last quarter of which was in 32 seconds; a six-year-old green pacer by Hal Clipper, 2:07½, dam by Gus-to, 2:19¼, that has been a mile in 2:22, last quarter in 31½ seconds. This mare does not wear anything, is of good size and a very excellent green prospect. Gosnell's health is much improved over last year and his horses show the part of careful training and fitness which he has the ability to give them when at his best.

AMUSEMENTS

The Palace theater will have a complete change of program tonight.

The Star Grand offers a Vitagraph subject tonight entitled "Over the Garden Wall." It is a drama of romance and love, with a charming by-play of juvenile courtship. And if you will go and take a peep over the garden wall, it will gladden your hearts and lives with tender recollections of your sweetheart days. Earl Robertson will sing "Mandy How do You Do."

The Vaudet theater management offers an extremely good program for Saturday evening theater goers in the film, "The Governor's Pardon." It is an intensely interesting Imp film with good dramatic action. It tells a story of real human interest which is scarcely found in moving pictures. # The Stowaway

By LOUIS TRACY

Author of the "Pillar of Light," "The Wings of the Morning" and "The Captain of the Kansas."

Copyright, 1909 by Edward J. Clode

The Stowaway is a typical Tracy story that grips the interest with the first chapter and holds it firmly until the last. A conspiracy against the safety of a ship, a beautiful girl in distress, a brave sailor who aids her and speedily learns to love her, a mysterious island which is the scene of a South American revolutionary plot--these are some of the characters and themes utilized by a master story teller in weaving a romance of life under the mystic Southern Cross.

CHAPTER I.

THE ANDROMEDA.

"MARRY Mr. Bulmer! That horrid old man! Uncle, what are you saying?"

The girl sprang to her feet as if she were some timid creature of the wild aroused from sylvan broodings by knowledge of imminent danger. In her terror she upset three wineglasses on the luncheon table. One, rose tinted and ornate, crashed to the floor, and the noise seemed to irritate the owner of Linden House more than his niece's shrill terror.

"No need to bust up our best set of 'ock glasses just because I 'appen to mention owd Dickey Bulmer," he growled.

"I'm sorry," she said and stooped to pick up the fragments scattered over the carpet.

"Leave that alone," came the sharp order. "It's 'igh time you an' me 'ad a straight talk, an' I can't do w' folk bouncin' about like an injia rubber ball when I've got things to say to 'em."

He gulped down some of the wine, darted his tongue several times in and out between his teeth, smacked his lips, replaced his cigar in his mouth and leaned back in his chair until it creaked.

Iris Yorke, accustomed to this ritual, found herself even in her present trouble wondering how it was possible that David Verity could be her mother's brother. This coarse mannered man, brother to the sweet voiced, tender hearted gentlewoman whose gracious wraith was left undimmed in the girl's memory by the lapse of years--it would be unbelievable if it were not true! But he had shown kindness to her in his domineering way. Shocked almost at the disloyalty of her thoughts, Iris tried to close the rift that had opened so unexpectedly.

"It was stupid of me to take you seriously," she said. "You cannot really mean that Mr. Bulmer wishes to marry me?"

"I meant it right enough, my lass," he said.

"But, uncle, dear!"

"Stop a bit. Listen to me first an' say your say when I've finished. Like everybody else, you think I'm a rich man. David Verity, Esq., shipowner of Linden House an' Exchange buildings--it looks all right, don't it, like one of them furrin apples with rosy peel an' a maggot inside? You're the first I've told about the maggot. Fact is, I'm broke. Shipownin' is rotten nowadays unless you've lots of capital. I've lost mine. Unless I get help, an' a thumpin' big slice of it, my name figures in the Gazette. I want £50,000, an' oo's goin' to give it to me? I put it to owd Dickey yesterday, an' 'e said you couldn't raise money in Liverpool today to build a ferryboat. But 'e said summat else. If you wed 'im 'e makes you a partner in the firm of Verity, Bulmer & Co. See? Wot's wrong with that? I've done everything for you up to date. Now it's your turn. Simple, isn't it? P'raps I ought to have explained things differently, but it didn't occur to me you'd object to bein' the wife of a millionaire, even if 'e is a doddrin' owd idiot to talk of marryin' ag'in."

"Oh, uncle!"

With a wall of despair the girl sank back and covered her face with her hands. Now that she believed the incredible she could utter no protest. The sacrifice demanded was too great. Verity was angry, almost alarmed. Resistance, even of this passive sort, raised the savage in him. Hitherto Iris had been ready to obey his slightest whim.

"There's no use cryin' 'Oh, uncle,' an' kickin' up a fuss," he snapped viciously. "Where would you 'ave bin, I'd like to know, if it wasn't for me? In the gutter--that's where your precious fool of a father left your mother an' you. You're the best dressed an' best lookin' an' best educated girl I bootle today--thanks to me. When your mother kem 'ere ten year ago an' said her lit'rery gent of a 'usband was dead, neither of you 'ad 'ad a square meal for weeks--remember that, will you? It isn't my fault you've got to marry Bulmer. It's just a bit of infernal bad luck--the same for both of us, if it comes to that. An' why shouldn't you 'ave some of the sours after I've given you all the sweets?"

The girl staggered to her feet. "I will do what you ask," she murmured, though there was a pitiful quivering at the corners of her mouth that bespoke an agony beyond the relief of tears. "But please don't say any more and never again allude to my dear father in that way or I may--I may forget what I owe you."

The door closed and he was alone. Taking a small notebook from his pocket, he jotted down an array of figures. He was so absorbed in their analysis that he did not see Iris walk listlessly across the lawn that spread its summer greenery in front of the dining room windows. And that was an ill thing for David. The sight of the girl at that instant meant a great deal to him.

"Yes; that's it," he was thinking. "I must wheedle Dickey into the bank tomorrow. A word from 'im an' they'll all grovel, blast 'em!"

The door opened. "Captain Coke to see you, sir," said a servant.

"Send 'im in. Bring 'im in 'ere."

The memorandum book disappeared. Verity's hearty greeting was that of a man who had not a care in the world. "Glad to see you, Jimmie, my boy. Sit yourself down. 'Ave a cigar an' a glass o' port. I didn't expect you quite so soon, but you're just as welcome now as later."

Captain Coke placed his hat on top of a malacca cane and balanced both against the back of a chair.

"I'll take a smoke, but no wine, thankee, Mr. Verity," said he. "I kem along now cos I want to be aboard afore it's dark. We're moored in an awkward place."

"Poor owd Andromeda! Just 'er usual luck, eh, Jimmie?"

"Well, she ain't wot you might call one of fortune's fav'rīts, but she's afloat, an' that's more'n you can say for a good many daisy cutters I've known."

Verity chuckled. "Some ships are worth less afloat than ashore, an' she's one of 'em," he grinned. "You want a match. 'Ere you are!"

"Coke puffed away in silence. There was an awkward pause. For once in his career Verity regretted his cultivated trick of covering up a significant phrase by quickly adding some comment on a totally different subject. But the sailor smoked on, stolidly heedless of a sudden lapse in the conversation, and the shipowner was complained to start afresh. He was far too shrewd to go straight back to the topic burked by his own error.

"It's stuffy in 'ere with the two of us smokin'. Let's stroll into the garden," he said.

Coke was agreeable. "It's the only bit of green stuff you seem to be fond of, Mr. Verity," he went on. "You keep us crool short of vegetables."

David's little eyes twinkled. Here was another opening. It would not be his fault if it led again up a cul-de-sac. He threw wide the window, and they crossed the lawn.

"Vegetables!" he cried. "Wish I could stock you from my place, an'

I'd stuff you with 'em. I can grow 'em 'ere for next to nothin', but they cost a heap of money in furrin ports, an' your crimson wave catcher doesn't earn money. She eats it."

"Even that's one better'n her skipper, 'oo doesn't do neether," commented Coke gloomily. "The Andromeda was a good ship in 'er day, but that day is gone. You ought to 'ave sold 'er to the Dutchmen five years ago, Mr. Verity. Times were better then, an' now you'd 'ave a fine steel ship instead of a box of scrap iron."

They were passing the rhododendrons, and Verity's quick eyes noted that a summer house beneath the shade of two venerable elms was unoccupied.

"Drop anchor in 'ere, Coke," said Verity. "It's cool an' breezy, an' we can 'ave a quiet confab without bein' bothered. Now, I reelly sent for you today to tell you I mean to better the supplies this trip. Yes, 'onest Injun! I'm goin' to bung in an extry 'undred tomorrow in the way of stores. Funny, isn't it?"

"Funny! It's a miracle!"

Though not altogether gratified by this wholehearted agreement with his own views, Verity was too anxious to keep his hearer on the present tack to resent any implied slur on his earlier efforts as a caterer.

"It's nothing to wot I'd do if I could afford it," he added graciously. "But wot chance 'as an iron ship built twenty years ago at a cost of £16 a ton agin a steel ship of today at £7 a ton, with twice the cargo space an' three feet less draft? W'y, no earthly. We're dished every way. We cost more to run, we can't jump 'arf the bars, we can't carry 'arf the stuff, we pay double insurance, an' we're axed to find interest on more'n double the capital. As you say, Jimmie, wot bloomin' chancas 'ave we?"

Coke smoked silently. He had said none of these things, but when the shipowner's glance suddenly dwelt on him he nodded.

"Premium gone up, then?" he inquired.

"She's on a twelvemonth rate. It runs out in September. If you're lucky an' fill up with nitrate soon you may be 'ome again. If not, I'll 'ave to whack up a special quotation. After that there'll be no insurance. The Andromeda goes for wot she'll fetch."

Another pause. Then Coke broached a new phase. "Meanin' that I lose the £2,000 I put in 'er to get my berth?" he said huskily.

"An' wot about me? I lose eight times as much. Just think of it! Sixteen thousand pounds would give me a fair balance to go on w' I these hard times, an' your two thou' would make the skipper's job in my new ship a certainty."

Coke's brick red face darkened. He breathed hard.

"Wot new ship?" he demanded.

"It's a secret, Jimmie, but I must stretch a point for a pal's sake. Dickey Bulmer's goin' to marry my niece, an' 'e 'as pledged himself to double the capital of the firm. Now I've let the cat out of the bag. I'm sorry, ole man--pon me soul, I am--but w'en Dickey's name crops up on change you know as well as me 'ow many captain's tickets will be backed w' t' brass."

Neither man spoke during so long a time that the break seemed to impose a test of endurance. In such a crisis he who has all at stake will yield rather than be who only stakes a part.

"Spose we talk plainly as man to man?" said Coke thickly at last.

"I can't talk much plainer," said Verity.

"Yes, you can. Promise me the command of your next ship, an' the Andromeda goes on the rocks this side o' Montevideo."

Verity jumped as though he had been stung by an infuriated wasp.

"Coke, I'm surprised at you," he grunted, not without a sharp glance around to make sure no other was near.

"No, you ain't not a bit surprised, on'y you don't like to 'ear it in cold English. That's wot you're drivin' at--the insurance. Wot are you afraid of? I take all the risk an' precious little of the money. Write me a letter!"

"Write! Me! Coke, you're loony."

"Not me. Wait till I'm through. Write a letter sayin' you're sorry the Andromeda must be laid up this fall, but promisin' me the next vacancy. 'Ow does that 'urt you?"

Verity's cigar had gone out. He re-lighted it with due deliberation. It could not be denied that his nerve at least was superb.

"I'm willin' to do anything in reason," he said slowly. "I don't see where I can lay 'ands on a better man than you, Jimmie, even if you do talk nonsense at times."

"I'll call at your office in the mornin' for the letter," said Coke, whose red face shone like the setting sun seen through a haze.

"Yes, yes, I'll 'ave it ready."

"An' you won't back out of them extry stores? I must sweeten the crew on this run."

"I'll supply the best of stuff, enough to last for the round trip. But don't make any mistake. You must be back afore Sept. 30. That's the date of the policy. By the way, 'oo's the new man you've shipped as second? Watts is the chief, I know, but 'oo is Mr. Philip Hozier?"

"Youngster fillin' in sea service to get a ticket an' qualify for the Command."

"Thoroughly reliable sort of chap, eh?"

"The best. Just the right kind of second for the Andromeda's last cruise. Smart as a new pin. You could trust 'im on the bridge of a battleship. Now, Watts is a good man, but a tot of rum makes 'im fair daft."

"Ah," purred Verity, "you must keep a tight 'and on Watts. I like an appetizer meself w'en I'm off dooty, so to speak, but it's no joke to 'ave a boozier in charge of a fine ship an' vallyble freight. Of course you're responsible as master, but you can't be on deck mornin', noon an' night. Choke Watts off the drink an' you'll 'ave no trouble. Well, come along. Let's lubricate."

The Andromeda sailed on the Tuesday afternoon's tide. She would drop the pilot off Holyhead, and if she followed the beaten track on her long run to the river Plate--as sailors will persist in miscalling that wondrous Rio de la Plata--she might be signaled from Madeira or the Cape Verde islands. But shipmasters often prefer to set a course clear of the land till they pick up the coast of South America. If she were not spoken by some passing steamer there was every possibility that the sturdy old vessel would not be heard of again before reaching her destination.

But David Verity heard of her much sooner, and no thunderbolt that ever rent the heavens could have startled him more than the manner of that hearing.

Resolving to clinch matters with regard to Iris and her elderly sister, he invited "Owd Dickey" to supper on Sunday evening. The girl endured the man's presence with a placid dignity that amazed her uncle. On the plea of a headache she retired at an early hour, leaving Bulmer to gloat over his prospective happiness and primed to the point of dementia.

He was quite willing to accompany Verity to the bank next morning. A pleasant spoken manager sighed his relief when the visitors were gone, and he was free to look at the item "bills discounted" on Verity's page in the ledger. More than that, a lawyer was instructed to draw up a partnership deed, and the representatives of various shipbuilding firms were asked to supply estimates for two new vessels.

Altogether Dickey was complaisant and David enjoyed a busy and successful day. He dined in town, came home at a late hour and merely grinned when a servant told him that Mr. Bulmer had called twice, but Miss Iris happened to be out on both occasions.

Nevertheless at breakfast on Tuesday he warned his niece not to keep her admirer dangling at arm's length.

"E's a queer owd codger," explained the philosopher. "Play up to 'im a bit, an' you'll be able to twist 'im around your little finger. I b'lieve he's goin' dotty, an' you can trust me to see that the marriage settlement is O. K."

"Will you be home to dinner?" was her response.

"No. Now that the firm is in smooth water again, I must show myself a bit. It's all thanks to you, lass, an' I'll not forget it. Goodby!"

Iris smiled, and Verity was vastly pleased.

"I am sure you will not forget," she said. "Goodby!"

"There's no understandin' wimmin," mused David as his victoria swept through the gates of Linden House. "Sunday afternoon Dickey might 'a' bin a dose of rat poison. Now she's ready to swallow 'im as if 'e was a chocolate drop."

Again he returned some few minutes after midnight. Again the servant announced Mr. Bulmer's visits, three of them, and again Miss Iris had been absent. In fact, she had not yet come home.

"Not 'ome!" cried David furiously. "W'y, it's gone 12. W're the--w're is she?"

No one knew. She had quitted the house soon after Verity himself and had not been seen since. Storm and rage as he might and did, David could not discover his niece's whereabouts. But enlightenment came on Thursday morning. A letter arrived by the first post. It was from Iris:

My Dear Uncle--Neither you nor Mr. Bulmer should have any objection to my passing the few remaining weeks of my liberty in the manner best pleasing to myself. On Sunday evening in your presence Mr. Bulmer urged me to fix an early date for our marriage. Tell him that I shall marry him when the Andromeda returns to England from South America. You will remember that you promised last year to take me to Rio de Janeiro and Buenos Aires this summer. I have been learning Spanish so as to help our sight-seeing. Unfortunately business prevents you from keeping that promise, but there is no reason why I should not go. I am on board the Andromeda and will probably be able to explain matters satisfactorily to Captain Coke. The vessel is due back at the end of September, I believe, so Mr. Bulmer will not have long to wait. It is more than likely that Captain Coke will not know I am aboard until Thursday, and I have arranged with a friend that this letter shall reach you about the same time. Please convey my apologies to Mr. Bulmer and accept my regret for any anxiety you may have felt owing to my unaccountable absence. Your affectionate niece, IRIS YORKE.

David narrowly escaped an apoplectic seizure. When he recovered his senses he looked ten years older. The instinct of self preservation alone saved him in his frenzy from blurtin' forth the tidings of the girl's flight. Incoherent with fear and passion, he contrived to give orders for his carriage and was driven to his office. Thence he dispatched telegrams to every signaling station at which by the remotest possibility the Andromeda might be intercepted, and the text of every message was, "Andromeda must return to Liverpool instantly."

But the wretched man realized that he was doomed. Fate had struck at him mercilessly.

Never was ship more eagerly sought than the Andromeda, yet never was ship more completely engulfed in the mysterious silence of the great sea. The days passed and the weeks, yet nothing was heard of her. She figured in the "overdue" list at Lloyd's, sharp eyed underwriters did "specs" in her, woebegone women began to haunt the Liverpool office for news of husbands and sons; the lovelorn Dickey wore Verity to a shadow of his former self by alternate pleadings and threats, but the Andromeda remained mute, and the fanciful letters from Iris became fewer and more fragmentary as David's imagination failed and his excuses grew thinner.

And the odd thing was that if David had only known it he could have saved himself all this heartburning and misery by looking through the dining room window on that Sunday afternoon when his prospects seemed to be so rosy. He never thought of that. He cursed every circumstance and person impartially and fluently, but he omitted from the satanic litany the one girlish prank of tree climbing that led Iris to spring out of sight amid the sheltering arms of an elm when her uncle and Captain Coke deemed the summer house a suitable place for "a plain talk as man to man."

POLITICAL GOSSIP

Much Interest Noted In the Coming
Twelfth District Convention.

[Special Correspondence.]

Indianapolis, June 18.—When the Twelfth district Republican congressional convention meets at Kendallville June 25, the name of Judge O. N. Heaton will be presented to the delegates. Judge Heaton's many friends believe that he will be nominated, and they are enthusiastically certain that he will be elected, if he is nominated. More than that, they are saying that Judge Heaton will do himself and his state great credit at Washington, if he is honored by his district with leadership. Republicans of Fort Wayne argue that with Judge Heaton on the Congressional ticket, Allen county will go Republican, and not only the county tickets in the district, but the legislative tickets, including that in Allen county, will be greatly strengthened, and aided to success. Judge Heaton is acceptable to all elements of the Republican party in the Twelfth. He is a vote-getter, an organizer, and a natural leader. C. C. Gilhams, former congressman, has not been heard from as to his attitude towards the congressional prize. Mr. Gilhams is being strongly boosted for the next Republican nomination for governor, and it is possible that he will be a factor when Northern Indiana asks for that nomination in 1912.

Congressional candidates, both Democratic and Republican, will be sound by the Anti-Saloon league on the question of a federal law to prevent the shipping of liquors from wet states into dry territory in other states. The Anti-Saloon league workers will not take a hand in the contest for United States senator. Both Beveridge and Kern are looked upon by the league as beyond reproach on the question of temperance and public morals. This is not to say that the temperance people will not take a part in making legislators in Indiana. Candidates of both great parties will be asked to make public avowal of their positions on existing temperance legislation. The Anti-Saloon league will oppose the "wet" candidate, no matter what ticket he may be on. It is the view of the Anti-Saloon league men that the question of maintaining the local option law and other restrictive liquor laws is up to the counties, and on this basis the fight will be made. Each county within itself, has the choice to make. The local voters pick their candidates, and in the nature of things, pick men who represent local sentiment. And it is on this basis that the temperance people, knowing the sentiment of Indiana, are willing to submit their cause for settlement by the people.

It is not so difficult to write a brewery plank into a Democratic state platform. All it takes is boss control of the state committee, and an aching hunger for brewery campaign contributions. But there comes more or less trouble when the brewery plank is sought to be forced on the rank and file in rural districts. County after county repudiates the Democratic state platform so far as that plank was written by the brewery agents. Boone has passed resolutions in Democratic county convention, demanding the maintenance of the local option law and instructing the legislative Democratic nominee to stand by the statute. Wells county Democrats have done likewise, and with emphasis, and their candidate for representative was nominated because he proclaimed himself out of line with the Democratic state platform and in line with the Republican platform. Montgomery county Democrats have defied the bosses and refused to be guided by the Democratic state pronouncement. Elkhart county Democrats join the revolt, and in the convention held today the drys were in the saddle and prepared to go squarely back on the Democratic state platform. All this in spite of the fact that State Senator R. E. Proctor of that county was the gamest fighter the brewers had at their call at the last legislative session.

It is a noticeable fact that John W. Kern, nominated by the Taggart and brewery combine for United States senator at the state convention, has not moved a hand or lifted his voice to oppose this revolt of Democrats against their own state platform. It is noticed that Mr. Kern is indorsed heartily by the same conventions which declare against the brewery scheme to destroy the local option statute. All this leads to the inquiry whether Mr. Kern stands on the Democratic state platform or not. Just before he was indorsed for United States senator Mr. Kern made a speech at Kokomo in which he denounced the brewers and proclaimed adherence to the local option law now on the books. Has he changed? Did he accept the brewers' platform when he accepted the brewers' indorsement for senator? Is it his idea of serving his political masters to permit the Democrats in the country districts to repudiate those masters? It begins to look as if Mr. Kern might find himself seriously involved, on one side or the other. Verily, he cannot serve brewer and voter. He must throw over the brewery bosses and Taggart, or resign himself to lose the rank and file in his one-time stronghold in the out-state counties. He cannot play double for long.

The Postal Savings Bank Bill.
Washington, June 18.—The postal bank bill is under consideration in the senate today, and it is expected there will be a vote on the bill before the day is over.

RARE UNANIMITY MARKED THE VOTE

Only One Member Held Out Against New Rules.

THE HOUSE AT LAST PACIFIED

Regulars, Insurgents and Democrats
Alike Agree Upon Method of Extincting the House From the Situation
It Has Found Itself in Ever Since Revolt Against Rules Committee Egan.

Washington, June 18.—Joining hands with rare unanimity, the regular Republicans, the insurgent Republicans and Democrats of the house adopted an amendment to the rules of the body which all factions declared was a long step in the right direction. One lone member, Representative Rucker of Missouri, a Democrat, voted against the rule. He denounced it backwards and forwards and sideways, working himself into a passion during the performance and finally frankly admitting that his principal objection to the rule lay in the fact that Cannon, Dalzell, Payne and Smith were for it. He rapped around and filled the air with violence for ten crowded minutes. The house sat back and laughed at him. His own colleagues seemed more amused than even the Republicans. Rucker was seconded by Representative Sims in his denunciation of the proposition of which the committee for the first time in the memory of man made a unanimously favorable report. But when the time came to vote Mr. Sims lost his nerve and Rucker stood alone. The love feast that resulted in the adoption of this new amendment to the rules, which permits the house to discharge any committee from the consideration of a bill after a certain time and under certain conditions was much in the nature of a burlesque on the big fight of March 19, when the speaker was eliminated from the rules committee and when an attempt was made to drag him down from his place. It is true that Republicans, insurgents and Democrats filled the air with loud sounds for an hour, but excitement was lacking, for all spoke to the same effect.

Champ Clark explained that the amendment was a Democratic doctrine pure and simple. Dalzell told how it was a regular plan, and Victor Murdock explained that it was entirely insurgent. All this effort to establish legitimate parentage seemed to tickle the house to the limit, and the occasion throughout wore anything but a serious and solemn aspect.

A GREAT FLIGHT

Youthful Aviator Broke All Records
For Altitude.

Indianapolis, June 18.—A new world's record flight of 4,803 feet altitude was made here last evening by Walter S. Brookins, youthful aviator, who has been a pupil of Wilbur and Orville Wright for the last three months. Starting at 6:30 p. m., in a Wright biplane, he accomplished the most remarkable feat of the kind yet recorded. At the end of an hour two experts who were keeping the measurement announced that Brookins was 4,803 feet above the ground. The aircraft appeared to falter and stand still then, but for only an instant. Then it started to drop like a rocket. The aviators who were watching the feat said with a shudder that Brookins's engine had stopped.

For what seemed a thousand feet he fell with great velocity, then he managed to head the biplane down. Apparently he was trying to glide back into the course, but he was unsuccessful. He landed safely in a field a mile away without any injury to his car.

Commander Peary has returned from his European trip.

A THOUSAND DROWNED

Floods in Hungary Have Caused Unprecedented Loss of Life.

Vienna, June 18.—Nearly a thousand deaths are reported to have been caused by the floods in Hungary, which exceed all records. It is probable that the worst is not known. The roads, railroads and telegraphs have been destroyed. Thousands of sheep, cattle and horses were drowned. The rivers are choked with their bodies, trees and wreckage of houses. In some villages practically every building has been swept away. Thousands of acres of crops have been carried off. The population is in a condition of despair.

HIS HEART IS FULL OF APPRECIATION

Roosevelt Acknowledges The Fine Time He Has Had.

New York, June 18.—Colonel Roosevelt said: "I have been away from America a year and a quarter, and while I enjoyed my trip through Africa, I have been much more greatly pleased with my experience in Europe. In fact, I fall to see how anyone under any circumstances could have had a more interesting or pleasant trip than the one which has fallen to my lot. I wish to express my very deep appreciation of the more than general courtesy and hospitality which has been extended to me by the people and the rulers of the different countries through which I have passed. Of course I am very glad to get home. I appreciate deeply the kindness of the multitude of friends who have asked me to speak in different places, but I hope that they will understand that it is a physical impossibility for me even to consider the acceptance of more than one in a hundred of these invitations. I shall not speak for more than two months after my arrival home, and my first appearance in that way will be at the John Brown celebration in Kansas. After that I will go to the frontier gathering at Cheyenne, then to the conservation congress at St. Paul, and one or two other places. Positively, I shall have nothing to say in the near future about politics and will give no interviews on that subject. Everything purporting to be a talk with me that may appear in the papers can be safely set down at once as invention."

Mr. Taft's Travels.

From there he will hurry back to Washington, arriving there about 9 o'clock this evening.

In sickness, if a certain hidden nerve goes wrong, then the organ that this nerve controls will also surely fail. It may be a stomach nerve, or it may have given strength and support to the heart and kidneys. It was Dr. Shoop that first pointed to this vital truth. Dr. Shoop's Restorative was not made to dose the stomach nor to temporarily stimulate the heart or kidneys. That old-fashioned method is all wrong. Dr. Shoop's Restorative goes directly to these failing inside nerves. The remarkable success of this prescription demonstrates the wisdom of treating the actual cause of these failing organs. And it is indeed easy to prove. A simple five or ten days test will surely tell. Try it once and see! Sold by Frank E. Wolcott.

NEXT SUNDAY FATHER'S DAY

Spokane, Wash., Ministerial Alliance is Sending Out Invitations to Churches and Organizations.

ASKING DAY'S OBSERVANCE

Rose is Suggested as Suitable Flower to Wear on That Occasion.

Officers of the Spokane Ministerial Alliance and the Young Men's Christian Association of Spokane are sending out invitations to churches and allied organizations in towns and cities all over the United States to pay tribute to the head of the house on father's day, Sunday June 19, the rose being suggested as a suitable flower to wear on the occasion.

Mrs. J. R. Dodd, of 610 Sharp avenue, Spokane, who is the originator of the idea, thus explained the plan for a National movement in a petition to the ministers of this city:

"The beautiful custom of mother's day suggests the question, 'Why not a father's day? This is further emphasized by the celebration of children's day by our Sunday schools.

"Father's day would call attention to such constructive teachings from the pulpit as would naturally point out:

"The father's place in the home.

"The training of children.

"The safeguarding of the marriage tie.

"The meaning of this, whether in the light of religion or of patriotism is so apparent as to need no argument in behalf of such a day, to be celebrated all over the country."

Rev. Dr. William J. Hindley, pastor of the Pilgrim Congregational church, said in discussing the movement.

"I'm glad there will be an opportunity to speak a few kind words in public for the 'old man,' who is entitled to a lot of praise; in fact, I do not believe any of us can say in words more than 'dad' deserves. I am proud too, that the movement originated in Spokane, and I hope it will be generally observed in a National way."

MIKE GRASTON IS PROMOTED

Former Agent of Big Four in Rushville Heads Important Traction Road.

GOES TO I. N. & C. INTERURBAN

Has Had Five Years' Experience With Union Traction Line Since Leaving Big Four.

Mike Graston, for some time local agent of the Big Four in this city, and later agent at Wabash, but who resigned the place to take a position with the Indiana Union Traction company with headquarters at Indianapolis, Ind., has just received deserved recognition of his ability as a railroad man.

Mr. Graston for five years has filled successfully the office of district passenger and freight agent for the Indiana Union Traction company and for fourteen years previous was connected with the Big Four railroad. He has been appointed general manager of the Indianapolis, New Castle & Toledo Traction company. He assumed his new duties June 15, with headquarters in the Union Trust company building.

It is the expectation to have cars in operation on the Indianapolis, New Castle & Toledo traction line by the latter part of this month. The traction line is an important one and there is no doubt but it will be handling a big volume of business before the close of the year.

Mr. Graston's friends in Rushville and he has a lot of 'em, will be delighted to know of his merited advancement.

SHOULD PARDON WEATHER MAN

Might Now be Forgiven For His Transgressions of Late With Return of Heat.

MURMUR AGAINST THAT NOW

Farmers Are Well Pleased With the Change as Crops are Showing a Marked Improvement.

In the last few days the fear that the seasons had somehow changed, that a "cold summer" was ahead or that Halley's comet had had some permanent effect on the temperature of the present season has melted along with starched collars and cuffs. Yesterday the mercury soared to ninety and this afternoon, in the hottest time, it went above that mark a degree or so.

With the well established habit of complaining, the public now murmurs against the heat as much as it did against the dampness, the gloom and the chill that has so lately passed away. But there is one class that murmurs not at all, and that is the farmers, for every ray of sunshine and every rising degree of temperature gives new life to the growing corn.

Only a week or so ago the young blades, which had unfolded from the soil into such an inhospitable temperature, looked sick and disappointed, as if they would gladly hide in the earth again, but now the sickly look has gone, the stalks are growing with every hour, and the rich dark green color is beginning to hide even the vacant spaces between the rows.

The wheat which was believed to be endangered by joint worms, is now more vigorous and healthy in appearance than it was, and withal the farmer has little to discourage him. The weather is doing its good work well, as if, after a season of vacation and mischief, it were anxious to make amends to those mortal creatures who have trusted it so long.

Last night the mercury fell and in the grateful coolness sleep came sweetly to healthy bodies and conscience. Altogether, it is believed that the weather man ought to be pardoned for his transgressions lately past, in view of the good things he is doing now.

What Our Neighbors Are Talking About

AGITATE "BIG WEDNESDAY."

(Greensburg Democrat.)

Realizing that the most of their trade comes on Mondays and Saturdays, causing some strenuous efforts on those days to wait upon the large crowds with entire satisfaction to all, Rushville merchants have inaugurated a plan they call "Big Wednesday." This plan seems to be giving entire satisfaction and to be a success. They rent a vacant room and have an auction. The merchants advertise a cut price for that day only and place their ads in the newspapers. At night they treat the people to a band concert.

Why can't Greensburg put such a plan as this in operation?

HEN PREFERS PIGS.

(Greensburg Democrat.)

Alfred Jackson and wife of five miles south of Shelbyville, have a bantam hen which has to all intents and purposes deserted the fowl kingdom and taken up with the animal kingdom.

She was given a brood of little chicks to care for, but refused to accept the charge and went to the barn where she took up with a litter of nine pigs which she clucked to her side and scratches the dirt and tries to feed them, after which she would try to cover them with her wings, and at night she goes under the manger and roosts near them.

Another strange thing is the fact that the mother of the pigs, usually so cross when their family is young, pays no attention to the hen and the pigs while they are roaming about the barnyard together.

TO WATCH FOR BRIGADES.

(New Castle Courier.)

The suitcase brigades from New Castle and other points in "dry" territory, which have made life miserable for the temperance people of Cambridge City, may not find it such easy sailing when Cambridge City becomes "dry," and the traffic in liquor is transferred to Richmond.

Numerous disturbances in interurban cars and in the streets of Cambridge City caused the crusade which resulted in remonstrating out of Jackson township all saloons and the Richmond dealers in "wet" goods therefore, are not anxious that the business shall be deflected here, and the police declare that if any of the "undesirable" class hit Richmond and proceed to warm up things, there will be prompt arrests.

LAUREL IS NOW VERY OLD TOWN

Old Records Show it Was First Named Baltimore and Later Changed to Laurel City.

ORIGINATED BACK IN 1836

The following from the Brookville American in its issue of December 2, 1836, will be of interest to Republican readers, especially those in the southern part of the county:

"Laurel City—This is the name of the town laid off by Mr. Conwell in Posey township, (now Laurel) in this county, the sale of lots in which took place on Tuesday and Wednesday last. We were present on the first day of the sale. The lots sold very well, varying from $150 to $3,000. The town was first named 'Baltimore' but having discovered there was another town in the State called Baltimore we determined on changing it to Laurel City to prevent any difficulty in sending papers or letters through the postoffice. We understand that some fine buildings will be put up immediately."

SHIRT WAISTS

Where is the Lady

who, in the course of the hot summer months does not add to her wardrobe several shirtwaists. The shirtwaist is the one garment that is in universal use, and brings to the wearer a sense of the most profound refreshment.

Choosing a shirtwaist should not be done in an off-hand manner, but should be given the attention it justly deserves. Differences in the quality of shirtwaists exist as much as in any other garment. And then there is that satisfaction that comes from the surety that the style—that all-important style—is absolutely correct.

Hundreds of beautiful shirtwaists await you, with the best of the existing styles represented. There is the waist with high collar and long sleeves, the waist with the Dutch collar and long or elbow sleeves, and the waist with low, square neck and elbow sleeves, all elaborately trimmed. Then too there are several styles of strictly tailored waists, either plain, plaited or neatly embroidered.
